DIRECTIONS: Snap FLY LEG BANDS around animal's legs. Bands must be worn snugly, yet loose enough so one to two fingers may be easily inserted between band and leg. Any band when snapped too tightly may cause skin irritation. The FLY LEG BANDS are not intended for full body coverage, but for limited coverage around legs. Once packaging is opened and/or bands are placed around animal's legs, ingredients begin generating a repelling effect against flies, fleas, mosquitoes, ticks and "no-see-ums" for up to 2 months. Keep bands dry. When bathing animal, remove bands until horse is dry. If FLY LEG BANDS are removed from packaging before use, or from animal for intermittent wearing, it is suggested you place the bands in a zip-lock bag and in a cool dry place for ultimate duration of effectiveness. Replace bands when effectiveness diminishes. This is a superior band and should not harm healthy animals.

CAUTION: Do not open packaging until ready to use. Do not allow children to play with bands. Band is intended for use only as an insecticide generator and is not to be taken internally by man or animals. Some animals may be sensitive to these bands. The materials are not certified to be hypoallergenic and may cause allergic reactions in some animals. Animals should not be allowed to chew on bands. When bands are first worn, observe the leg area for irritation every few days. Remove bands at first sign of irritation or a first reaction. Do not use on sick or convalescing animals.
